ORGANISATIONAL ENVIRONMENT

Justice Health is a statutory health corporation constituted under the Health Services Act 1997. Justice Health provides and coordinates a comprehensive range of health care services for people in contact with the NSW criminal justice system.

The Forensic Hospital is a stand alone, 135 bed, high secure environment for males, females and adolescents that provides specialist care for mentally disordered offenders or those at risk of offending. This includes people who have been found to be not guilty due to reasons of mental illness (NGMI) those found unfit to plea, and those transferred to the Forensic Hospital from the Department of Corrective Services (DCS) and Department of Juvenile Justice under the NSW Mental Health Act 2007.

The primary objective of the Forensic Hospital is to provide a high secure environment to assess, manage and care for forensic patients in line with national and international best practice, while continuing to maintain the safety of the general community.

NSW Health Vision – Healthy people now and in the future.

Justice Health Vision - International best practice health care for those in contact with the criminal justice system.

Justice Health Goals –

- Identify the health needs of our client group
- Provide high quality clinically appropriate services, informed by best practice and applied research
- Make health care part of the rehabilitative endeavour
- Facilitate continuity of care to the community
- Develop an organisational culture that supports service delivery
- Promote fair access to health services
- Provide strong corporate and clinical governance

REPORTING RELATIONSHIPS

The Endorsed Enrolled Nurse (EEN) Forensic Mental Health has a reporting line to the Nurse Manager, Mental Health (NMMH) through the Operational Nurse Manager (ONM) and the Nursing Unit Manager (NUM). The EEN will have a strong working relationship with the multidisciplinary team.

POSITION SUMMARY

The EEN will assist in the planning, implementation and evaluation of the day to day mental health and basic physical health care requirements of patients within the Forensic Hospital. The EEN will practice under the direction and supervision of the RN. Supervision may be direct or indirect and all duties are delegated after consideration of relevant legislation and policies, the context of practice and the competence of the EEN. The EEN retains responsibility for their personal and professional actions whilst remaining accountable to the RN for all delegated functions. All staff have a responsibility to maintain the safety and security of patients, staff and visitors within the high secure environment

Activities which the EEN may provide support for include coordinating and initiating health care for patients within a high secure environment. This includes participating in mental health assessments, risk assessment and management, alcohol and other drug assessments, history taking and developing comprehensive nursing management plans as well as making timely and appropriate referral to relevant services within and outside of the Forensic Hospital as required. Other important activities which the EEN may be directly or indirectly involved in include the initiation of appropriate treatment, management and referral in emergency situations (as per scope of practice) and providing individualised mental health care under the direction of the RN while maintaining a focus on the safety and security of the Forensic Hospital.

KEY ACCOUNTABILITIES

Forensic Mental Health practice is concerned with assessing and treating people with mental illness who are involved in criminal justice processes. Understanding and working with criminal justice agencies, systems and processes is essential for responsible provision of nursing care.

The Australian Nursing and Midwifery Council (ANMC) National Competency Standards for the Enrolled Nurse (December 2005) provide the framework for practice. Practice is also guided by the Australian College of Mental Health Nurses (ACMHN 1995) Standards of Practice for Mental Health Nurses, the Code of Ethics for Nurses in Australia (2008) and the Code of Professional Conduct for Nurses in Australia (2008)

The standards take account of the contemporary role of the Enrolled Nurse which covers clinical practice, management of care, counselling, health promotion, client advocacy, facilitation of change and research. They provide a benchmark for nurses in daily practice.

The competency standards reflect the unique characteristics of nursing as well as broader attributes nurses have in common with other professions and occupations. In addition, they identify the knowledge, skills and attitudes required by nurses and reflect the complex nature of nursing activities.

Other Key responsibilities include:

- To comply with the Justice Health Code of Conduct and other Ethical and Professional Guidelines for Justice Health staff.
- To utilise and promote reflective practice models, such as Clinical Supervision to promote self awareness and development of self and colleagues.
- To comply with the NSW Mental Health Act 2007, the NSW Mental Health (Criminal Procedure) Act 1990, Children and Young Persons (Care and Protection) Act 1998, and other relevant legislation.
- To contribute within knowledge and skill level to the maintenance of a safe environment through prevention, surveillance, monitoring and early intervention.
- To utilise appropriate de-escalation skills to prevent aggressive behaviour.
- To facilitate patient participation in care planning and delivery, wherever possible.
- To responsibly and effectively manage resources used in the provision of health care.
- To participate in medication administration procedures according to statutory and organisational guidelines under the supervision of the RN.
- To comply with the Mental Health Outcomes and Assessment Tools (MHOAT) as per NSW Health policy. This includes data collection, data entry, timely reporting, use of outcome measures and electronic client registration for National Minimum Data Set reporting, and any other data requirements set by NSW Health or Justice Health.
- To report incidents appropriately using Incident Information Management System (iims).
- To recognise the rights of mentally ill patients as outlined in the United Nations “Principles on the Protection of People with Mental Illness” and the Australian Health Ministers “Mental Health Statement of Rights and Responsibilities”.
- To adhere to NSW Health Frontline Procedures for the Protection of Children and Young People.
- To ensure own knowledge, practice and philosophy of care is consistent with the requirements of National Standards for Mental Health Services.
- To maintain appropriate documentation of the health management of patients for professional clinical and legal purposes.
- To be competent under supervision in the management of medical emergencies, physical assessment and crisis intervention.
- To be responsible as directed for the day-to-day health care delivery within a high secure therapeutic environment.
- To work within a patient-focused framework.
- To ensure knowledge of policies and procedures and practice within these frameworks
- To attend training that has been identified as mandatory by NSW Health and Justice Health as required.
- Any other duties as may be reasonably requested by RN and line managers.
